INTRODUCTION

Brief History of the German Navy

At the end of the Franco-Prussian War, when King Wilhelm of Prussia was crowned German Emperor at Versailles, January 18, 1871, the Prusso-German Navy was directed by a fleet command for its units afloat and by both operational and administrative authorities at the highest level of its shore establishment. This administrative-operational dichotomy in the Navy's leadership had been evident from its beginnings in 1843, and it persisted through the Navy's development until 1870 (successively under Prussia, the Frankfurt Parliament, and the North German Confederation). The operational authority--headed by Prince Adalbert of Prussia--and the administrative authority--headed successively by Otto Freiherr von Manteuffel, Albrecht Graf von Roon, and Eduard (von, as of 1882) Jachmann--competed for control of the German Navy (Ressortstreit). The resolution of this dichotomy was imminent when it was interrupted by the outbreak of the Franco-Prussian War, thereafter to remain unresolved until the advent of the Marineleitung under the Weimar Republic in 1920. Early in the Franco-Prussian War, both Prince Adalbert, Chef des Oberkommandos der Marine (Naval High Command), and General von Roon, who headed the Marineministerium (Naval Ministry), decided to devote their efforts to the army commands they held concurrently with their naval duties. Likewise Vizeadmiral Jachmann, next in line at the ministry as director of its Marinedepartement and the man most likely to have succeeded in resolving the dichotomy, gave his undivided attention to the command of the Panzerflotte in the North Sea. Thus in 1870 the monarch appointed Rear Admiral Kuhn to head both the Oberkommando and the Marineministerium, with the Oberkommando subordinate to the ministry. Kuhn did little to amalgamate these two authorities into a unified naval organization.

A Cabinet Order of June 15, 1871, upheld and codified the 1870 subordination of the Oberkommando to the Marineministerium. On January 1, 1872, the Marineministerium was renamed the Kaiserliche Admiralitaet (Imperial Admiralty). Simultaneously, the naval establishment was removed from any army supervision by the Kaiser's designation of a Chef der Kaiserlichen Admiralitaet. As chief of the Imperial Admiralty, he was responsible to the Imperial Chancellor in administrative and technical matters; he was directly responsible to the Kaiser in operational matters. The Chefs der Kaiserlichen Admiralitaet were, successively, General of the Infantry and Admiral Albrecht von Stosch (1871-83), General Leo Graf von Caprivi (1883-88), and Vice Admiral Alexander Graf von Monts, Acting (1888-89). During the time of Wilhelm I, the Chef expanded the size and competence of the North Sea Naval Station Command (thereby raising its strength and status to that of the Baltic Sea Naval Station Command), the naval shipyards, the naval depots, and the torpedo arm of the navy.

In 1888 both Wilhelm I and his son, Friedrich III, died. Friedrich's son, Wilhelm II, was crowned on June 15, 1888. His avid interest throughout his reign in the Imperial German Navy caused later historians to dub it the "Wilhelmine Navy." In 1889 Wilhelm II dissolved the Kaiserliche Admiralitaet and left the Oberkommando der Marine and the Reichsmarineamt (R.M.A.--Reich Navy Office), as the administrative authority was now known, to pursue their separate and equal existences.

Concerned with command matters and the training of personnel, the Oberkommando der Marine was led by the following officers under the designation of Kommandierender Admiral (Commanding Admiral) responsible to the Kaiser: Colmar Freiherr von der Goltz (1889-95) and Eduard von Knorr (1895-99). The R.M.A. was responsible for administrative and organizational affairs of the navy, such as armament, fortifications, preparation of service regulations, shipbuilding, and technology. It was headed by the following State Secretaries, responsible to the Imperial Chancellor: Adm. Eduard Heusner (1889-90), Adm. Friedrich von Hollmann (1890-97), Adm. Alfred (von, as of 1900) Tirpitz (1897-1916), Adm. Eduard von Capelle (1916-18), Adm. Paul Behncke (1918), Adm. Ernst Ritter von Mann Edler von Tiechler (1918-19), and Adm. Maximillian Rogge (1919).

To the two preceding naval authorities, the Kaiser added his personal "secretariat," the Marine-Kabinett (Navy Cabinet), to serve as intermediary, especially in matters of officer personnel, between himself and the other two authorities. The two "Chefs" of the Marine-Kabinett were Captain von Senden und Bibran (1889-1906) and Adm. Georg von Mueller (1906-18).

Besides these major organizational changes, the first decade of the Wilhelmine Navy saw the Etatbegruendung (establishment of the Naval Budget) in 1888, the formulation of "Dienstschrift IX" as the navy's equivalent of the army's "Schlieffen Plan," and the Sino-Japanese War of 1894-95 (Battle of the Yalu) as the testing ground for "Dienstschrift IX." During the second and third decades of the Wilhelmine Navy, the armament and construction race with England progressed to its culmination in the First World War and the dissolution of Bismarck's Second Reich. Tirpitz was nominated State Secretary of the R.M.A. on March 31, 1897. Under his direction, the two Flottengesetze (fleet laws) for the financing of naval construction appeared in 1898 and 1900, followed by the three Flottennovellen (supplements) of 1906, 1908, and 1912. As a result of these laws and supplements, the fleet was to be expanded from 19 to 61 large fighting ships, mainly battleships and battle cruisers. By 1914, 53 such ships were already afloat.

In March 1899 the Kaiser himself took over supreme command (Oberbefehl) of the navy, just as he was exercising it over the army. He dissolved the Oberkommando der Marine, leaving only a division (the Admiralstabsabteilung), which had been created by Cabinet Order of December 14, 1875, to administer the training and development of an "Admiral Staff" of career officers comparable to the Army General Staff. Inheriting many functions of the former Oberkommando, this division quickly grew and was soon redesignated Admiralstab der Marine (Admiralty Staff of the Navy) with a "Chef" immediately subordinate to the Kaiser. Also immediately subordinate (and directly accessible) to the Kaiser (the "Immediatstellen" of the Tirpitz era) were the State Secretary of the R.M.A., the Chief of the Navy Cabinet, the Chiefs of the Baltic Sea and North Sea Navy Station Commands, the Inspector General of the Navy, the Inspector of the Naval Training Establishment, the Chief of the Ist Battle Squadron (also known as the Fleet Commander), the Chief of the Cruiser Squadron, and all "Kommandanten" of ships and units abroad cruising alone.

The Admiralstab der Marine, concerned with the study and development of naval staff matters and plans for operations, was composed of a Central Department (C), a European Department (A) for operations in the Baltic and North Seas, and an extra-European Department (B) for operations in other theaters of maritime warfare. The successive Chefs des Admiralstabes were Rear Adm. Felix von Bendemann (1899), Vice Adm. Otto von Diederichs (1899-1902), Vice Adm. Wilhelm Buechsel (1902-8), Adm. Friedrich Graf von Baudissin (1908-9), Adm. Max von Fischel (1909-11), Vice Adm. August von Heeringen (1911-13), Adm. Hugo von Pohl (1913-15), Vice Adm. Gustav Bachmann (1915), Adm. Henning von Holtzendorff (1915-18), and Adm. Reinhard Scheer (1918).

After November 1918 the Admiralstab was provisionally placed under the R.M.A., which thus regained its supremacy within the naval establishment. In 1919, the entire naval establishment was renamed the Admiralitaet (Admiralty) and was placed under the authority of the Reich Defense Minister with the Reich President as supreme commander of all armed forces. From 1919 to 1920, Adm. Adolf von Trotha was at the head of the Admiralitaet.

In 1920 the Admiralitaet, primary "conduit" for coordination of naval operations, was redesignated Marineleitung and became a branch within the Reichswehrministerium (RWM--Reich Defense Ministry). Exercising full control over naval affairs under authority of the Reich Defense Minister, the Chefs der Marineleitung were Vice Adm. William Michaelis, (1920), Adm. Paul Behncke (1920-24), Adm. Hans Zenker 1924-28), and Adm. Erich Raeder (1928-35). The main subdivisions of the Marineleitung were: the offices for operational matters, Marinekommandoamt (A); for general naval matters, Allgemeine Marineamt (B); and for administrative matters, Verwaltungsamt (C). The in-house opposition and competition for supremacy (Ressortstreit) that had existed between operational and administrative authorities within the naval establishment since before 1870 was thus finally resolved.

In 1935, 2 years after Hitler had come to power, the designation Chef der Marineleitung was changed to Oberbefehlshaber der Kriegsmarine (Ob.d.M.--Commander in Chief of the Navy), Marineleitung was changed to Oberkommando der Kriegsmarine (OKM--Navy High Command), and the RWM was changed to Reichskriegsministerium (RKM--Reich War Ministry). The position of Ob.d.M. was held by Grossadmiral Erich Raeder (October 1935-January 1943), Grossadmiral Karl Doenitz (January 1943-April 1945), and Generaladmiral Hans-Georg von Friedeburg (May 1945).

In 1937 the Chef des Marinekommandoamts received the additional designation of Chef des Stabes der Seekriegsleitung (operational staff for sea warfare). This title was somewhat controversial in that it evoked memory of Admiral Scheer's "Seekriegsleitung im Grossen Hauptquartier," the naval component of the Kaiser's personal operations staff of 1918, and was painfully linked to the revolution and overthrow of the Second Empire in 1918. The Seekriegsleitung (Skl.) of 1937-45 continuously employed arabic numerals in the office symbols used for its subdivisions (for instance, 1/Skl. for the Operations Division), while the Marinekommandoamt continued its usage of roman numerals (for instance, A III for the Supply Division). Shortly before the outbreak of war in 1939, the Chef des Marinekommandoamts was subordinated to the Chef des Stabes der Skl. In the wake of the OKM reorganization following outbreak of war in the autumn of 1939 and the changes of subordination within the Marine-Nachrichten-Dienst (MND--Naval Intelligence Service), which had been an Abteilung of the Marinekommandoamt, a general renumbering of the divisions (Abteilungen) of the Skl. took place. There remained, however, a basic continuity of arabic numerals for the Seekriegsleitung and roman numerals for the Marinekommandoamt. When the Allgemeines Marineamt (B) of the Marineleitung was dissolved in November 1939, its Amtsgruppe Nautik (office group for nautical matters) and the Militaerische Technische Abteilung (division for military technology) were transferred to the Marinekommandoamt under the Seekriegsleitung. The Kriegswissenschaftliche Abteilung (KA)--naval science division--and Kriegsgeschichtliche Abteilung (MKrGesch)--naval history division--which had been independent Abteilungen under the Ob.d.M., became directly subordinate in the fall of 1939 to the Skl. as Skl/KA and Skl/MKrGesch. Such were the changes within the operations and command structure of the naval establishment before and during the Second World War. Periodic renumbering of the Abteilungen and Amtsgruppen took place so that, for example, the Abteilung Marinenachrichtendienst was known as 3/Skl through 1934-39 and as 2/Skl through 1940-41; after dissolution of the Naval Intelligence Inspectorate in June 1941, this Abteilung became an Amtsgruppe known as 2/Skl Chef MND; and after March 1944, as 4/Skl Chef MND. On May 1, 1944, the Chef des Stabes der Seekriegsleitung was redesignated Chef der Seekriegsleitung (C/Skl).

One of the changes within the administrative structure during the OKM reorganization of 1939 was the establishment of the Allgemeine Marinehauptamt (AMA--General Navy Main Office). Its major components--the Marinewehramt (Navy Defense Office), the Marinemedizinalamt (Navy Medical Office), and the Marineverwaltungsamt (Navy Administration Office)--had been directly subordinate to the Ob.d.M. from about 1928. The chief of the AMA was redesignated Chef der Kriegsmarine-Wehr (Mar Wehr) on May 1, 1944. When the last Ob.d.M., Generaladmiral von Friedeburg, committed suicide on May 23, 1945, the Chef der Mar Wehr, Generaladmiral Warzecha, became the senior naval officer and assumed the functions, but not the title, of Ob.d.M.

Another change affecting the administrative structure by the 1939 reorganization was the redesignation of the Marinewaffenamt (Navy Weapons Office) as Hauptamt der Marinewaffenaemter (Main Office of the Navy Weapons Offices). With the dissolution of the Allgemeines Marineamt (B), its Abteilung Technisches Nachrichtenwesen (division for technological intelligence) and Wehrwirtschaftsabteilung (division for defense economy) were transferred as Amtsgruppen to the Hauptamt. As of May 1, 1944, the Chef des Hauptamtes der Marinewaffenaemter was redesignated Chef der Kriegsmarine-Ruestung (Mar Ruest)--Chief of Navy Armament. At that time, the Hauptamt Kriegsschiffbau (Main Office for Naval Construction) was transferred to his jurisdiction.

History of the Tambach Archives

The OKM was located at Tirpitzufer 72/76 in Berlin. On November 22-23, 1943, the command buildings were bombed out and many of the OKM offices withdrew to "Bismarck," code name for alternate headquarters of the Ob.d.M. staff (Stabsquartier) in Eberswalde, 30 miles northeast of Berlin, while a few of the OKM offices remained at the Tirpitzufer. Shortly thereafter the Ob.d.M., with a following that included part of his Operations Staff and the Marinepersonalamt, transferred to Stabsquartier "Koralle" near Bernau, 13 miles northeast of Berlin. The transfer of personnel from "Bismarck" to the area of Varel and Wilhelmshaven was begun early in February 1945, with subsequent transfers to the Eutin area and finally to the area of Flensburg and Gluecksburg.

While the Skl/KA continued to occupy the premises at Tirpitzufer 72/76 in Berlin, the Archiv der Marine (Naval Archives) had been evacuated as early as March 1941 to Schloss Tambach, the castle near Coburg that is the ancestral residence of Count Ortenburg. The Wehrmacht had requisitioned the entire west wing and the second story of the rest of the castle for the housing of the naval records. Some of the personnel were also housed in the castle while the rest were housed in the immediate vicinity. The Skl/KA eventually moved from the Tirpitzufer, first to Sundgauerstrasse 5 and then to Buelowstrasse 90, both within Berlin, transferring finally in December 1943 to Schloss Tambach. Because of strict military security, little was known to outsiders of the events within the requisitioned parts of the castle, although Grossadmiral Doenitz is said to have visited on two occasions.

The city of Coburg surrendered to the 11th Armored Division of the U.S. 3d Army on April 11, 1945. Regimental Combat Team 5 of the U.S. 71st Division was then attached to the 11th Armored Division to occupy Coburg and to clear the woods to the west. Thus it might have been expected that Schloss Tambach would fall to that unit under General Patton. The fact that the Tambach archives were, instead, captured by British forces is corroborated by entries in the private diary of Korvettenkapitaen a.D. Peter Freiherr von Handel-Mazzetti, an Austrian-born archivist then at Tambach, and by a report of Lt. Cdr. T. J. Glanville, RNVR, who commanded the British team that captured Schloss Tambach.

Operating in the Coburg area, and in other areas of the Allied advance, was a unit of British Naval Intelligence known as 30 AU, from its designation as Thirtieth Assault Unit or, from March 1945, as 30 Advance(d) Unit. It was operating under Branch 30 of His Britannic Majesty's Naval Intelligence Division (N.I.D. 30). The unit was composed of intelligence and technical officers of the Royal Navy as well as of a unit of Royal Marines composed of officers and men specially selected from commando groups who had volunteered for missions of extremely hazardous nature. Its mission was to capture intelligence information and transmittal mechanisms and, whenever possible, to prevent the enemy from demolishing specific targets of naval importance. Careful investigation of a charred piece of paper had led Glanville's team, two officers of the Royal Navy and five enlisted men of the Royal Marines, to Schloss Tambach on April 25, 1945.

The first U.S. troops arrived at Schloss Tambach on April 28 in response to a request for assistance from Glanville. Thereafter, there was a great deal of traffic to and fro as the evacuation to London of the bulk of the archives (in an estimated 600 medium-sized wooden crates) began.

Before its capture, Schloss Tambach had not been targeted; it first appeared on the NTS G-2 Target List after Glanville had reported its discovery. Throughout the 2 weeks of April 11-25, 1945, the staff at the castle had gone about their usual business with virtual freedom of movement. U.S. troops had come nearest to the castle on the day of Coburg's surrender, when armored units had passed through Tambach village en route to surrounding woods on mopping-up operations.

Even if the castle had been seized and secured by personnel of the U.S. 3d Army, the Tambach archives would have been evacuated to England and ultimate British custody as the result of a combined policy agreement made exactly a year before the surrender of Coburg. This agreement granted postwar joint possession of any German naval records to the United Kingdom and the United States, with Great Britain having custody of the records. However, both countries were to have equal access to the records and the right to microfilm them. This agreement appears to have been formulated at a meeting of British and U.S. Intelligence officers in Norfolk House on the afternoon of April 11, 1944. The agreement remained basically verbal; the minutes of the meeting afford only a pale reflection of the specific transactions after the capture of the Tambach archives; nevertheless, this policy agreement was the basis for the U.S. Navy's project of microfilming the German naval records.*

Arrangement of the Records

The Tambach archives arrived at the state of arrangement found in this microfilm publication (T1022) by means of three steps that may be termed the German, the British, and the American phases of arrangement.

German Phase

German archivists had divided the Tambach archives into two basic chronological periods: 1850-1920 (the Archiv der Marine) and 1920-45 (records not yet old enough to retire to the Archiv der Marine). The ultimate distinction between the records of the two periods lies in the fact that the pre-1920 records had been thoroughly and professionally arranged by German archivists, while the 1920-45 records had been logged in and provisionally sorted but had not been given any final arrangement.

* A special debt of gratitude is due Mr. R. M. Coppock of Her Britannic Majesty's Naval Historical Division, Whitehall, without whose kind reference assistance and critique the story of 30 AU's role in the seizure of the Tambach archives could not have been told.

German archivists had separated the 1850-1920 records into either of two categories: war journals (including activity reports and after-action reports) or subject files. They had arranged the command war journals by ship type (e.g., U-boat and T-boat flotillas, battleship squadrons, etc.) and by area commands (e.g., North Sea Defenses, etc.). They had arranged the subject files by an elaborate system of file symbols (Aktenzeichen), complicated by frequent reorganizations that coincided with significant events in Prussian, Imperial German, and Third Reich history. These symbols identify records series, each series based on a particular subject and created by a bureau or office in top-level naval commands without regard to provenance of individual documents. The largest and most complex subject arrangement is found for the Admiralstab der Marine, Abteilung "B," under the file symbols III-1-22 through III-1-24 and bearing the alternate titles "Krieg zwischen Deutschland und Russland, Frankreich, England" and "Europaeischer Krieg."

As 1920-45 records arrived at Tambach from March 1941 until March 1945, German archivists logged in the documents by creating a register, assigning a register number for each document, and writing the register number in red ink in the upper right-hand corner of each document's cover or first page. These numbers usually consist of three to five digits prefixed by the letters "KA" or "Kr." Although no naval counterpart to the Potsdam Catalog (the official German register of the German Army archives) has been found, it is believed that these numbers represent a registration of documents according to either the Kriegswissenschaftliche Abteilung (Skl/KA) or the Kriegsgeschichtliche Abteilung (Skl/MKrGesch), both of which were under the Seekriegsleitung of 1937-45.

In addition to the "KA" or "Kr" number, relatively few documents contain file symbols (Aktenzeichen) that identify specific subjects (e.g., Aktz. I and II, Mediterranean Operations; Aktz. III, France; Aktz. IV, Fuehrer Directives; etc.). From this, it appears that the archivists were formulating a subject file arrangement for the 1920-45 records, but nothing definite can be said about the final arrangement scheme as the capture of Tambach Castle interrupted the work at an early stage.

British Phase

From the beginning of WW II, British authorities registered captured German naval records as they arrived at Whitehall. Register numbers were assigned in sequence and were prefixed with the letters "PG," which stand for "Pinched from the Germans." (PI was used for "Pinched from the Italians," PJ for "Pinched from the Japanese.") Records captured before April 1945 were mainly technical in content, and their register entries, all of which have PG numbers, constitute the "technical register." The Tambach archives are operational in content, and entries in the British register for these records therefore constitute the "operational register." Entries in the operational register for 1850-1920 records were given the "Fach" (box, or shelf) numbers assigned by the British while crating the records at Tambach for transportation to Whitehall. Each Fach number represents approximately one cubic foot of records and reflects the original German arrangement. Operational register entries for 1920-45 documents were assigned PG numbers. Later, PG numbers were given to 1850-1920 Tambach documents that were recognized as possibilities for U.S. Navy microfilming (but not all documents assigned PG numbers were filmed). The following blocks of PG numbers were issued:

> 1-29999, 40000-44499, 50000-59999, and 95000-99999 for technical records captured before April 1945;
> 60000-69999, 75000-79999, 90000-94999, and 100000-114999 for operational records, 1850-1920;* and > 30000-39999, 45000-49999, 70000-74999, and 80000-89999 for operational records, 1920-45.*

Not all the numbers of every block were used.

American Phase

When the U.S. Navy learned on May 7, 1945, of the capture of the Tambach archives, Commodore Dudley W. Knox, who headed the Office of Naval Records and Library (within the Office of the Chief of Naval Operations), began planning for the United States to act in accordance with the joint possession agreement with Great Britain. In order fully to utilize the intelligence information that was contained in the Tambach archives (operational records reflecting strategy and tactics, new developments in weapons, submarines, and breakthroughs in research and development), Knox had little difficulty in convincing the Director of Naval Intelligence (head of the Office of Naval Intelligence within the Office of the Chief of Naval Operations) to staff and finance a selective microfilming of the Tambach archives. Knox also recognized the importance of the captured records for historians, and this historical value was taken into account when deciding which records to film.

In August 1945 the U.S. Office of Naval Intelligence (ONI) began selectively filming at London the captured German naval records; the filming continued until July 1947. Most of this ONI project consisted of microfilming the Tambach archives (operational records); a relatively small part of the ONI project consisted of microfilming technical records that had been captured before April 1945.

* A few Tambach records were registered in blocks 1-29999 and 95000-99999.

ONI produced a total of 4,061 rolls of microfilm of operational records. ONI roll numbers for material from the Tambach archives were used by the 10 individual camera operators (working in two shifts, thereby using only five cameras) as follows: the first operator numbered his rolls T-1, T-2, T-3, etc. The second operator numbered his rolls T-1-A, T-2-A, T-3-A, etc. The third operator numbered his rolls T-1-B, T-2-B, etc. The same procedure obtains through the tenth operator, who numbered his rolls T-1-I, etc. ONI filmed naval records of the Third Reich until about the middle of August 1946, when five of the camera operators began filming records from the 1850-1920 period. Rolls containing this earlier naval material were numbered TA-1-A, TA-2-A, etc. (first operator); TA-1-C, etc. (second operator); and so forth. Operator "B" was not involved with the early records. Of the 4,061 rolls, 2,437 rolls belong to the T series (Tambach records created during the Third Reich), and 1,624 rolls belong to the TA series (Tambach records created before the Third Reich).

Because the ONI microfilming project was one of the first on such a large scale, filming procedures had not yet been formulated that would facilitate later archival use of records on film rather than in paper form. Therefore, frames were not numbered, and record items were broken between one roll and the next--both breaches of today's preferred archival microfilming practice.

Completed microfilm rolls for operational records were sent to ONI headquarters in Washington, D.C., under cover of accession lists. Usually, an accession list covered the work of only one camera operator. The accession lists were sent at irregular intervals and covered an irregular number of rolls. Each accession list was labeled ONI/TAM/, followed by a sequentially assigned arabic number representing a completed workload. On September 20, 1945, accession list ONI/TAM/1, covering 33 rolls (T-1 through T-33) of microfilm, was sent from London to Washington. On September 26, accession list ONI/TAM/2, covering 7 rolls (T-34 through T-40), was sent. On September 28, accession list ONI/TAM/3, covering 10 rolls (T-1-A through T-10-A), was sent. The next accession list was not sent until November 21, and it was a revision of ONI/TAM/3. This revised list was labeled ONI/TAM/3A, and its purpose was to correct errors in ONI/TAM/3 and to give, for the first time, a description of the contents of the 10 rolls. The practice of describing the content of each roll was continued in all subsequent accession lists. ONI/TAM/142 dated September 4, 1946, transmitted the first 37 rolls of microfilm containing records of the 1850-1920 period. These 37 rolls, filmed by four camera operators, were numbered TA-1-A through TA-10-A, TA-1-D through TA-10-D, TA-1-E through TA-8-E, and TA-1-F through TA-9-F. ONI/TAM/246, dated February 27, 1950, was the last accession list.

As ONI extracted pertinent information from the microfilmed records (all the while, money and staff being cut back in postwar reductions of military appropriations), the microfilm was transferred to the Office of Naval Records and Library, which was the component in the Navy Department that historically had custody of noncurrent naval records. This transfer began in August 1947; the transfer on paper was completed in February 1948. From 1954 until 1971, under the successive supervision of Loretta I. MacCrindle and Dean C. Allard, project work and reference service for the Tambach archives were conducted, as a virtual one-man operation, by Harry E. Rilley who, with the majority of the microfilm rolls, transferred to the National Archives and Records Service (NARS) in the spring of 1971.

Two things were done by the Office of Naval Records and Library (renamed the Naval Records and History Division in 1949 and the Naval History Division in 1952) that had bearing on the arrangement of the microfilmed records. First, it separated the accession lists transmitting T rolls from those transmitting TA rolls. It bound the accession lists into nine volumes, Volumes 1-7 containing the lists for T rolls and Volumes 8 and 9 containing those for TA rolls. These nine volumes became the basis for the later renumbering of the microfilm rolls by the National Archives and Records Service. Secondly, it created the TM (Tambach Miscellany) series of microfilm rolls. The 87 rolls of the TM series that are known to exist consist of:
(1) Rolls of documents from the T and TA series filmed by ONI that were needed for official or semiofficial research projects. Duplicate microfilm copies of these documents were made from the master negatives--sometimes entire rolls were duplicated and sometimes duplicates of documents from numerous rolls were spliced together to form new rolls. When these duplicate rolls, or rolls made up of duplicated documents, were returned to the Naval History Division after completion of a research project, they were occasionally filed in the TM series.
(2) Rolls of Tambach records not filmed by ONI. These rolls were filmed by various sources and were later sent to the Naval History Division.
(3) Rolls of non-Tambach records, entered in the British technical register with PG's below 30000, filmed by ONI and sent to the Bureau of Ships for its use in evaluating technical advances made by the German Navy. These rolls were sent to the Naval History Division when the Bureau of Ships technical library closed in 1966.
(4) Rolls of non-Tambach material bearing on the German Navy, created both before and after WW II apart from the original Tambach archives.

As security classifications on the microfilmed records were reduced, the film was transferred by the Naval History Division to the National Archives and Records Service (NARS), where there was greater storage space and greater public accessibility. The transfer began in October 1968 and was completed in early 1978. The TA series (the film for the records dated 1850-1920) was transferred to NARS before the T and TM series because the TA series was declassified first.

NARS decided to put all the ONI rolls into one microfilm publication and assigned the number "T1022" to the publication. Because of the 10 sequences of ONI roll numbers (corresponding to the procedure of the 10 camera operators in London during 1945-47, previously described), NARS found it necessary to renumber the rolls into one unified sequence. It was decided to follow the accession lists chronologically in determining the new sequence of roll numbers.

The TA series (1850-1920 Tambach records) was the first to arrive at NARS; therefore, NARS began working with accession list ONI/TAM/142. The first roll on ONI/TAM/142 was TA-1-A; it therefore became roll 3 of National Archives Microfilm Publication T1022 (the first two rolls of T1022 having been reserved for the filming of finding aids to the TA series of microfilm). The last of the TA series was filmed on T1022 roll 1626.

The next 33 rolls (numbered 1627-1659) are made up of duplicate paper copies of 1850-1920 records that were filmed for the first time by NARS. These duplicate paper copies had been sent to the ONI Washington headquarters under the policy agreement of 1944. In 1969 these records were filmed in response to a request from Vizeadmiral a.D. Friedrich Ruge, who had retired in 1961 from his position as Inspekteur der Bundesmarine.

The bulk of the T and TM series arrived at NARS from the Naval History Division in the summer of 1971. By agreement with Whitehall, the Naval History Division had withheld some rolls that contained material still security classified or privileged. NARS began renumbering the T series with roll 1660, using ONI/TAM/1; roll 4096 is the last T1022 roll number of the T series. In early 1978 NARS received the withheld rolls of the T series and became responsible for administering the few remaining security-classification restrictions.

T1022 roll 4097 is the first, and roll 4183 the last, roll of the TM series. Some of the 87 rolls have not yet been transferred to NARS. Three rolls (4146-4148) have been removed from T1022 because they already existed as rolls 1-3 of National Archives Microfilm Publication T608.

Guides to the Microfilmed Records of the German Navy, No. 1, Records of U-Boats and T-Boats, 1914-18, describes and indexes rolls

1-97 of National Archives Microfilm Publication T1022, Records of the German Navy, 1850-1945. The records contained in T1022 belong to Record Group 242, National Archives Collection of Foreign Records Seized, 1941- .

The documents described in this guide were selected from the body of war journals held by the Admiralstab der Marine, Abteilung A, and were, with rare exceptions, filmed from the block that includes PG 60000-63000.

Because of the filming procedure of the ONI translation and microfilm team, many of the record items were filmed out of sequence. Thus, while this guide contains most U-boat and some T-boat war journals of World War I, there are a number of such war journals of the same period, as well as journals of various echelons of their superior commands, omitted here because they do not appear until later rolls. These omitted journals, listed on page XXXI, will be described in a later guide of the German Navy series.

Each description in this guide is preceded by four headers: RECORD ITEM (PG followed by a 5-digit number), T1022 ROLL, ONI ROLL, and DATE (date span of PG document only; postwar dates that are included in the description of some documents are not included in this date span). The unbroken T1022 roll sequence is used and not the ONI roll sequence; the latter is given only for conversion identification. The Tambach archives collection was filmed without frame numbers; therefore, the PG number is used instead of frame numbers for document identification and location on pertinent T1022 rolls. In many instances, a PG document is split between two rolls; such documents are continued on the beginning of a later roll as listed in this guide. References to both roll numbers are given in the header (e.g., "7-8") and also in the text (e.g., PG 61660 is continued on roll 8). The description of each document covers material found within that document. If pertinent information is available from related documents, a "see" or a "see also" reference containing the PG number and the T1022 roll number is given in parenthesis (e.g., see also PG 64743 on roll 461 and PG 64747 on roll 405, on "Nordsee Operation Nr. 15").

The INDEX to this guide can be found immediately following the instructions for its use on page 152. It is an index to the descriptions of the records in this finding aid, rather than an index of the contents of the records. The index terms were derived from the descriptive material and have been supplemented with references, cross-references, and explanatory subheadings by means of computer techniques. For the spelling of geographical areas, the Columbia Lippincott Gazeteer of the World, 1970, and the NIS (National Intelligence Survey) Gazeteer (Office of Geography, Department of the Interior: Washington, 1955-64) were used; some variant spellings of geographical areas are given in parenthesis.

The master negatives of microfilm publication T1022 have been deposited with the Publications Sales Branch, National Archives and Records Service (GSA), Washington, DC 20408, from which copies of specific rolls may be purchased. Reference copies may be consulted in the Microfilm Reading Room of the National Archives.

Harry E. Rilley wrote the foregoing history of the Tambach archives. The descriptions in this guide were prepared by Harry E. Rilley and Johanna M. Wagner; the index and input data for the computer application were prepared by Johanna M. Wagner. John Mendelsohn supervised the preparation of the guide. The textual material was edited under the supervision of Shelby G. Bale, Chief, Editorial Branch.

SUGGESTIONS FOR CITING MICROFILM OF CAPTURED GERMAN AND RELATED RECORDS IN THE NATIONAL ARCHIVES OF THE UNITED STATES

The National Archives and Records Service is frequently asked to provide recommendations regarding information to be included in footnotes or other references to records among its holdings. The following suggestions should serve this purpose and also help our staff in locating the records thus cited.

Records

Because of the great variety and complexity of some archival material, there are no convenient models that would be applicable to all records. The initial citation, however, might consist of those of the following elements applicable in each instance: item, file unit, or subseries, series title, originating office (and the administrative units of which that office is a part) name of collection or record group number and title, and depository. Except for placing the cited item first, there is no general agreement on the sequence of the remaining elements in the citation. Publishers, professional journals, and graduate faculties all prescribe their own style. Whatever sequence is adopted, however, should be used consistently throughout the same work. If in doubt, the researcher should confer with an archivist regarding elements that may be necessary to identify adequately specific records being cited.

Microfilm Publications

Citation to records reproduced in National Archives microfilm publications should provide, in general, the same information as suggested above, but with sufficient additional information to identify the particular microfilm publication as well as roll and frame numbers, if applicable.

Microfilm publications of foreign records seized during World War II involve such peculiarities of identification that largely individualized suggested systems of citation have been developed for them. In contrast to the German records microfilmed at Alexandria, Va., the German Navy records microfilmed in London by the U.S. Navy did not include frame numbers and were frequently filmed on the basis of availability rather than arrangement. The examples below suggest a form of initial and subsequent citations for documents from these records; the form for the bibliography (not illustrated below) could be some appropriate modification of the initial citation, but should also include the National Archives record group title and number, and the title and number of the microfilm publication, e.g., National Archives Collection of Foreign Records Seized 1941- , Record Group 242, Records of the German Navy, 1850-1945, Microfilm Publication T1022.

Records from the German Naval Archives microfilmed by the United States Navy (Office of Naval Intelligence--ONI) at the Admiralty, London.
  Initial citation:
    "Schlachtschiff 'Bismarck' nachtraeglich entzifferte englische Funksprueche 23.5.-27.5.1941," PG 47893, T-183-C, National Archives Microfilm Publication T1022, roll 2791.
  Subsequent citations:
    "Schlachtschiff 'Bismarck,'" T1022/2791/PG 47893.

Initial citation:
"Seeschlacht vor dem Skagerrak," 31.5.-1.6.1916, Az. Kr. Op. Nordsee 61, PG 64808-64813; TA-109-A, TA-110-A, TA-104-D, TA-105-D, and TA-106-D; National Archives Microfilm Publication T1022, rolls 347-348 and 443-445.
Subsequent citations:
"Seeschlacht vor dem Stagerrak," T1022/347-348, 443-445/PG 64808-64813.

PG number is the essential record item number; the National Archives T1022 roll number is sufficient microfilm identification. The "T-" and "TA-" prefixes indicate the original U.S. Navy microfilm designation (for World War I German Navy records the prefix "TA-" is used) and is included for roll verification.

The National Archives and Records Service will appreciate receiving copies of books and articles based in whole or in part on records in its custody. Such copies should be directed to the Library, NARS, GSA, Washington, DC 20408.

CAPTURED GERMAN AND RELATED RECORDS HOLDINGS
(as of 1984)

The National Archives holds over 30,000 rolls of microfilm reproducing captured German and related records as described below. Reference copies of the microfilm may be consulted without charge in the microfilm reading room of the National Archives Building at Eighth and Pennsylvania Avenue, NW, Washington, DC, during the hours of 8:45 a.m. to 9:45 p.m., Monday to Friday, and 8:45 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. on Saturday. Specific rolls or entire series except those containing privileged material ("R" rolls), may be ordered at our standard price of $17 per roll by advance remittance or university purchase order made payable to the General Services Administration (NEPS) and sent to the Cashier, National Archives (GSA), Washington, DC 20408.

NATIONAL ARCHIVES COLLECTION OF SEIZED ENEMY RECORDS, 1941- , RG 242

The microfilm publications in this record group are for the most part listed by the place where the filming was done. Some of the papers may have been of private origin, but the fact of their seizure is not believed to divest their original owners of any literary property rights in them. Anyone, therefore, who publishes them in whole or in part without permission may be held liable for infringement of property rights.

The war journal reports rumors of the presence of the British Fleet, first in the Great Belt and then in the area between Stavanger and Christiansand, Norway, Sep 25-30, 1914. These rumors prompted sorties of all available U-boats through the Kaiser-Wilhelm-Kanal (Kiel Canal) and, eventually to the Skagerrak area. The document also describes measures taken on order of the Kaiser and on information received from the Generalstab der Armee (Army General Staff): the flotilla prepared to attack transport ships and was ready to prevent the landing of British troops, including 31,000 Canadians, at the ports of Le Havre and Boulogne, France, and at Blankenberge and Ostend, Belgium, Oct 3-9, 1914. Following enemy bombardments of Nieuport, Belgium, the U-boat Flotilla was activated in Flanders. The U.12 successfully docked at the harbor of Zeebrugge, Nov 5, 1914, and subsequently furnished a description of the harbor facilities. The report also states that the Chief of the II. U.Flottille transferred to command the new Flanders Flotilla on Nov 30, 1914.

Admiralstab der Marine, Abt. A, KTB, Band 2, I. U.Flottille u. F.d.U. des B.d.A. Flottillenchef und F.d.U.: Korv.Kapt. Bauer. War journal concerns the operations of its subordinate Halb-Flottillen and U-boats off the coast of the United Kingdom, attack on merchant ships, and minelaying operations, as well as the fate of some of its missing U-boats. The war journal contains a report of the Marinecorps (Marine Corps, highest naval authority in Flanders) that relates to four different issues: U.24 was the first U-boat to enter Ostend shipyard for repairs, Jan 7-11, 1915. - The question of whether an armed merchant ship under enemy flag could be attacked became a matter for legal discussion, Jan 14, 1915. The Kaiser issued an order, Feb 16, 1915, that warfare against neutral ships was to be waged only upon receipt of order for special cases. - The Torpedo-Versuchs-Kommando (T.V.K. - Torpedo Experimental Command) made an inquiry, Mar 22-25, 1915, into the failures of "Bronce" torpedoes.

The war journal includes several pieces of information. It states that the first report of the sinking of the English liner "Lusitania" was picked up from a British radiogram by the Linienschiff (Ship of the (Battle) Line) POSEN, May 7-8, 1915. It lists the composition of the four "Half-Flotillas" as of May 9, 1915: I. U.Halbflottille (U.6-U.17); II. U.Halbflottille (U.34-U.41); III. U.Halbflottille (U.19-U.26); and IV. U.Halbflottille (U.27-U.33). The document reports the loss of U.14 (sunk off Firth of Forth), and mentions that 6 officers and 21 men were rescued, including the Chief of the I. U.Halbflottille, Kaptlt. Muehlau, who had come aboard Jun 15, 1915, to initiate the Kommandant, Oblt.z.S. Hammerle, on his first war cruise with the U.14. It gives the composition of the "Half-Flotillas" as of Dec 5, 1915: I. U.Hfl. (with U.9-U.17) which was to receive all minelaying and U.B.-boats; II. U.Hfl. to be reconstituted by receiving U.51-U.56; III. U.Hfl. (with U.19-U.25, U.43, and U.44) to receive U.45-U.50; and IV. U.Hfl. (with U.28, U.30, U.32, and U.66-U.70) to receive U.63-U.65. Among the vessels sunk by U.B.38 were the French sailing vessel "Merveille" and the French steamer "Irma," the Norwegian steamer "Mallin," and the French three-mast bark "La Fraternite," Sep 22-Oct 8, 1916; the British steamer "Naiad," Nov 15, 1916; the Spanish steamer "Manuel," Jan 16, 1917; and the British collier "Birtley," Jan 5, 1918. U.B.38 departed Zeebrugge on Jan 29, 1918, for the English Channel and did not return from that mission. The war journal includes a list received from Kapt.z.S. Wassner, German Naval Attache in London in 1933, of 15 sinkings, Nov 13-23, 1916, which the French attributed to U.B.38. Spindler's postwar notes quote "The Merchant Navy," page 248, which claims that the British drifter GOWAN II, which patrolled the vicinity of Dover on Feb 8, 1918, encountered U.B.38. The British ship forced U.B.38 to enter the Dover barrage, where the U-boat ran upon a mine and sank.

Admiralstab der Marine, Abt. A, KTB, Band 1, U.154 des U.Kreuzerverbandes. Kommandant: Kaptlt. Gercke. U.154 departed Warnemuende on Feb 16, 1918, for minelaying operations and a war cruise to the Dakar, Senegal, waters. The war journal includes supplementary entries by Spindler on the U.154's assumed successes, including the bombardment of the radio station and shoreline of Monrovia, Liberia, Apr 9, 1918. According to "Fremde Presse," U.B.154 was destroyed by the British submarine E.35 off Cape St. Vincent, May 11, 1918. Foreign Press Reports of May 27, 1918, quote the British Admiralty's report of a U-boat "of the so-called cruiser-type" sunk by one of our Atlantic convoy submarines off Cape St. Vincent. In view of the fact that it was the first U-cruiser to be destroyed, we have made this exception to our rule of not reporting isolated sinkings of enemy submarines.

Admiralstab der Marine, Abt. A, KTB, Band 2, U.I. des R.M.A. Inspekteur: Kapt.z.S. Werner Siemens. The war journal of U.I. deals with the following matters: the construction, development, and launching of U-boats; the completion of training courses of Turkish personnel, Jan 10, 1916; the subordination of the Spezialkommando Pola to the U.I., Jan 14, 1916; the R.M.A. conference on the U-boat construction program to the end of 1916, Apr 1, 1916; experiments to incorporate Koerting four-stroke oil engines into standard construction, Jun 6, 1916; and results of the R.M.A. conference dealing with improvements for U-cruiser construction, Jul 28, 1916. The war journal covers Italy's declaration of war on Germany, Aug 27, 1916, Rumania's declaration of war on Austria-Hungary and Germany's on Rumania, Aug 28 1916. It also covers the following Navy affairs: the formation of U.Halbflottille Konstantinopel under the Mittelmeerdivision, Sep 14, 1916; the redesignation of the V. U.Flottille as "U.Flottille Kurland," Nov 17, 1916; the end of "Handelsuboot" (merchant, or transport U-boat) construction program, Feb 10, 1917; and the conversion of "U.Deutschland" to U.155, Mar 8, 1917. The war journal states that the Deutsche U.Flottille (Pola), formerly subordinate to U.I. in matters of personnel and administration, became completely subordinate to the Admiralstab der Marine, Mar 20, 1917; the U.Kreuzer-Flottille (U.K.Flottille) had to be formed and immediately subordinated to the Admiralstab, Mar 24, 1917; and the delays in schedule of U-boat construction due to worker unrest in the shipyards, Apr 13, 1917. The war journal of U.I. deals with the construction, state of readiness, and losses of U-boats. It covers the visit of the Turkish Naval Minister, Djemal Pasha, to the Germania Shipyard, Sep 1, 1917, and the return of U.155, Sep 5, 1917, first boat of the U.K.Flottille, from a 105-day cruise, during which it sank 55,000 tons of ships. The war journal also mentions the activation of a U-Bootsamt (U-boat Office) within the R.M.A. under direction of K.Adm. Ritter von Mann (U.I. to be subordinated to the U-Bootsamt), Dec 8, 1917; considerable interruption of U-boat construction due to strike at Germania Shipyard, Jan 26, 1918, which extended to Hamburg, Bremen, Berlin, and other towns, Jan 29, 1918; the suspension of U-boat dispatches and transports to Flanders, Oct 1, 1918, and to the Mediterranean, Oct 3, 1918; and the return of U-boats from Pola. It states that unseaworthy boats were to be blown up, Oct 29, 1918. V.Adm. Nordmann, acting Inspekteur, describes the upheavals of Nov 2-12, 1918: they began with a garrison alarm and unrest in Kiel, Nov 3, 1918, and were followed by the outbreak of the movement, seizure of the U.Division, and departure of the Frontbootshalbflottille der U.Schule, Nov 4, 1918. After the occupation of the academy office space of the U.I. by the Soldatenrat, and the conference with delegates of the U.I. on the resumption of service, Nov 5, 1918, the U.I. resumed limited service on Nov 7, 1918; posted armistice conditions on Nov 9; and concealed secret U.I. documents in the event Kiel was occupied by the enemy on Nov 10, 1918. The Seekriegsleitung announced the Armistice on Nov 11 and recalled all naval fighting forces to their bases on Nov 12, 1918.

The document begins with a report on the commissioning of the former merchant submarine, "U.Deutschland" as the naval U-boat U.155, Feb 19, 1917. The war journal reports the activation of the U.K.Flottille by order of the Kaiser, Mar 23, 1917, and the hoisting of the flotilla pennant aboard U.155, Apr 1, 1917. It gives details on the development of U-cruisers (submarines capable of crossing the Atlantic) and their assignments to conduct war on merchant shipping in North American waters. The war journal also contains reports on U-boat activities and lists of ships believed to have been sunk by U.139, U.140, and U.151 through U.157. They mention U.35, U.38, U.62, U.91, U.117, U.118, U.122-U.126, U.140, U.141, U.B.69, and U.B.70 as subordinate to the U.K.Flottille/Verband. T.Halbflottille took part in the fleet operation of Apr 17-18, 1915 (see also Kr. Op. Nordsee 40, PG 64780-781, roll 461). It also took part in the fleet operation to sweep enemy submarines from Helgoland waters, Jul 3-4, 1915 (see also Kr. Op. Nordsee 50, PG 64791, roll 462). Parts of the document are illegible.

PG 62185 97 TA-30-A 1915/08/01-1915/10/31
Admiralstab der Marine, Abt. A, KTB, Band 5, der 9. T.Halbflottille der V. T.Flottille. T.Halbflottillenchef: Kaptlt. Paulborn. The 9. T.Halbflottille transferred to the Baltic, Aug 3, 1915, and took part in the O.d.O.'s operation against Russian fleet in the Gulf of Riga, Aug 7, 1915. The operation was canceled Aug 8 because of strong Russian minefields. The 9. T.HFl. returned to Wilhelmshaven, Aug 24-25, 1915. It took part in the antisubmarine escort for the II. Geschwader during the tactical fleet exercises in waters off Helgoland, Sep 6-8, and conducted antisubmarine warfare, Oct 18-19, 1915. The 9. T.HFl. provided antisubmarine escort for ships of the III. Geschwader while the squadron operated against British patrol of shipping routes between the Skagerrak and Newcastle, Oct 23-24, 1915. Parts of the document are illegible.

INDEX

This computer-printed index consists of index terms derived from the foregoing descriptive register of Records of the German Navy, 1914-18, rather than directly from the records. This index has two alphabetical and one chronological computer sorts and provides a main keyword and often additional subkeyword(s) for each pertinent record item listed in the register, giving page number in the guide and roll and PG number (instead of frame number(s)) for document location and identification. Some of the index keywords and subkeyword(s) have been supplemented with a short explanation by means of computer techniques.

Main Keywords and Subkeywords

Main keywords or headings include names of individuals, geographical terms, countries, bodies of water, boats, naval operations (e.g., Unternehmung "Albion"), and abbreviations of various naval commands (e.g., B.d.A.d.O., Befehlshaber der Aufklaerungsschiffe der oestlichen Ostsee--Flag Officer Commanding Reconnaissance Ships in the eastern Baltic Sea).

Language

The keywords and subkeywords used in the index are the generally accepted English equivalents of the German or German-translated words found in the records. When using the original German word or its German abbreviation as the index term, the English equivalent or translation and sometimes a short explanation of the term is given (e.g., Ubootsfalle--Q.Ships, Decoy Vessel; F.d.U. Mittelmeer, Fuehrer der Unterseeboote im Mittelmeer--Commander of U-boats in the Mediterranean Sea). For purposes of automation, the diphthong is used instead of the umlaut (e.g., Führer der Unterseeboote becomes Fuehrer der Unterseeboote, and Kapitänleutnant becomes Kapitaenleutnant).

Geographical Terms

Geographical terms in this index are transliterated into the English rendition found in the Columbia Lippincott Gazetteer of the World, 1970. In most cases, references to German areas annexed to postwar Russia are given the English equivalent place names (e.g., Reval (See Tallinn), Windau (See also Ventspils), or Libau (Liepaja).)

Dates

The years, months, and days under the DATES column are the span dates on the cover page of the document. Postwar entries in some of the documents are given in the contents column, but are not included in the span date column.

Record Item and T1022 Roll

The U.S. Office of Naval Intelligence (ONI) filmed the records of the German Navy without frame numbers. The roll numbers are identified by TA-1-A, TA-2-A, or TA-1-C, etc., and NARS Microfilm Publication T1022 roll numbers were added later. Each record item is identified with "PG" followed by a 5-digit number (e.g., PG 62003); the PG-number was used in place of the nonexistent initial frame numbers for computer sort and record item identification on pertinent rolls.

INSTRUCTIONS FOR ORDERING MICROFILM

National Archives Microfilm Publication T1022, rolls 1-97,
Records of the German Navy, U-Boats and T-Boats, 1914-18

Microfilm copies of one or more rolls of microfilm may be purchased at the current quoted price per roll by writing to National Archives, NEPS, Washington, DC 20408. The quoted price includes postage or shipping costs on orders sent by surface mail within the United States. Costs for airmail shipment to foreign countries will also be quoted on request.

Checks or money orders for microfilm should accompany the order. They should be made payable to the General Services Administration (NEPS) and should be mailed to the Cashier, NARS, GSA, Washington, DC 20408. The order should specify Microfilm Publication T1022, the roll number or numbers, and the price.

Persons ordering microfilm from outside the United States or its possessions should make their remittance by international money order or check drawn in United States dollars on a bank in the United States made payable to the General Services Administration (NEPS) and mailed to the Cashier, NARS, GSA, Washington, DC 20408. The order should specify Microfilm Publication, T1022, the roll number or numbers, and the price.
